PECULIAR AUSTRALIA ANIMALS. Differ Greatly From Specimens of Same Species Found Eisewhere. St. Louis Globy Democrat.

Austrana has been called a "fossil conticent," because it presents types of life of companion, Address Miss GREdant elsewhere. Some time about the beinning of the terriary period of geology convulsion of nature severed the consction which at one time existed between ustralia and Asia, and from that time the former has been left to develop herselt, on her own lines. A belt of deep seaknown as Wallnee's line, cuts through the known as Wallnee's line, cuts through the Malay archipetago, and all the fauna to the Milay archipetago, and all the fauna to the MILIA WILSON, 1715 13th st. nw. Malay archipeago, and all the fauna to the south of this tine, with the exception of many birds and a few recent importations, are of a special and characteristic type. At the time of the severance small creatures of the marsupial or kangaros type prevailed all over the world. In Australia these have developed slowly and undisturbed. In the rest of the globe they were subject to fierce competition, giving way before the stronger races, till at length no advanced marsupial is left; with the exception of the opposum; and in him the struggle for existence has developed a cunning unknown to his Australian kinsmen. In Australia, however, the marsupials have had it all their own way, and it is interesting to notice how they have developed into many various forms to suit their environments—e.g., there are flying squirrels up America, but unlike flying squirrels up America, but unlike them in their underlying structure. The outh of this line, with the exception developed into many various forms to suit their environments—e. g., there are flying squirrels up America, but unlike them in their underlying structure. The hairy birds, too, such as the apteryx, behairy birds, too, such as the apteryx, be-long to a type extinct elsewhere. And, finally, much of the vegetation—the gom trees, the eastermas, and the wiry under-growth—is a survival from the forgotten floras of past geological ages.

CAUGHT THE BOYS' FANCY. They Thought the Pretty Girl Who Bought a Paper All Right.

Chicago Inter Ocean. A young woman stoodal the corner of Hal-sted street and Archer avenue waiting for a downtown car. She had a refined, sweet face, her brown hair was parted over a smooth forehead and a pair of wonderfully expressive and beautiful blue eyes. Her dress was elegant, but modest, and seeing her in that locality one instantly thought of eweet charity.

Two raggedlittle newsboys came up to the corner and gazed at her in frank admiration. Their look was returned with one of kind interest, and the win bound a mozer from the stant and the win bound. terest, and the girl bought a paper from each of them. Just then her car came, and with a sinde she left the corner.

"Ain't she a beauty?" asked one of the boys, while the other sangle a clear pretty voice. "She may firt with another, but I'm sure she loves me."

A middle aged, motherly-looking woman, who had watched the array, asked: "Do you mean me?" as she bought a paper; she could not afford two.

"Oh. no," answered the singer, "the lady with the pretty eyes."
"Now. I'm disappointed," said the moth-erly woman.

"Weli." called both boys, as they went on, "you're all right, too." I'we Wise Geese and the Pigs, A geotleman living in Eastern Georgia owned a pair of getse and some half-grown pigs, both of which resorted to a small plum thicket on the hillside to pick up the fallen

A small branch of one of the trees was broken and bent down to the ground, and the geese had somehow discovered that by catching the end of the branch in their bills and shaking the tree by means of it they could bring down the plums.

The pigs, seeing what was going on, soon found it to their interest to follow the greese to the plum thicket.

The peese would shake the tree, and the sound of a grateful shower of fruit would be learned and before they could would be beard, and before they could at the plums the pigs would have greedily gathered up most of them. Greatly exasperated, and with good reason, one of the geese would seize a hig by the ear, while the other marched and scolded. In his way, heating now, screaming nigry this way, beating poor, screaming piggy on the other side of him with their wings at every step, they would escort him to the top of the hill and there let him go. Then they would return and shake the tree again, with a similar result.—Youth's Companion.
